Gun discharged accidentally while Roxanne's sister, Bobbie, 10, was holding it, according to police.

Gun Kills Girl At Watervliet

Sisters Thought They Heard Prowler

Staff Writer

An eight-year-old Watervliet township girl was shot and killed last night when a shotgun held by her sister accidentally discharged from five feet away, according to state police of the Benton Harbor post.

Dead on arrival at Watervliet Community hospital was Roxanne Williams, daughter of James and Ruby Williams, Box 630, Paw Paw lake road.

Troopers said Roxanne was shot in the chest by her 10-year-old sister, Bobbie, who had picked up a shotgun after the girls heard a noise they thought was caused by a prowler.

Witnesses gave this account of the shooting, troopers said: The parents had gone out for the evening, and Roxanne, Bobbie, another sister, seven-year-old Ruby, and a neighbor girl, Debbie Harbold, 12, were in the Williams' mobile home by themselves.

The girls heard a noise outside about 9 p.m., so Bobbie got her father's gun, a 12 gauge semi-automatic shotgun. There were two shells in the gun, with one in the chamber.

As Bobbie got up from a couch, the gun accidentally discharged, and the pellets struck Roxanne, who was about five feet away from her sister.

Troopers said one of the girls ran to a neighbor's home, and Coloma township police were summoned. State police stated Coloma township asked for assistance in investigating the shooting, and troopers were dispatched to the scene.

Police said there was still one live round in the shotgun's chamber when they arrived. The Williams family lives in Watervliet township but has a postal address of Route 4, Coloma.

Roxanne was born Oct. 24, 1963, in Watervliet, the daughter of James E. and Ruby Piker Williams. This fall she would have been a fourth grade student at Watervliet's North Elementary school.

In addition to her parents, survivors include her grandmothers, Mrs. Florence Williams of Watervliet and Mrs. Violet Piker of Bradford, Ark.; and a brother, James, Jr., and two sisters, Ruby and Bobbie, all at home.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete this morning at the Davidson funeral home, Coloma, where friends may call after 7 p.m. Saturday.

GUN VICTIM: Roxanne Williams, 8, was shot and killed Thursday night when a shotgun held by her sister accidentally discharged in her family's mobile home in Watervliet township.

List Of Unsolved Female Murders Grows In Michigan

MUSKEGON, Mich. (AP) — Just one solid clue, a $60 gold wedding band, is all police have to work on in their efforts to solve the second apparent double-slaying discovered in western Michigan in the past two weeks.

The bodies of two women, as yet unidentified, were discovered earlier this week in isolated woods near Lakewood Club in the northern part of Muskegon County.

Eight days earlier, two 19-year-old Chicago women were found bound and strangled in the back seat of their car in the Galesburg area between Kalamazoo and Battle Creek.

The two incidents have been added to a list of other slayings—all of young women—which have gone unsolved in the western Michigan area over the past few years.

Medical tests continued at the University of Michigan's pathology department Thursday in an effort to identify the bodies found near Muskegon. Officers said the bodies were badly decomposed. The gold ring was found on one body, tentatively identified as that of a woman age 16½ to 17, about 5-foot-4½ and with long brunette hair. The ring was a woman's size 6½ and had the initials HGE engraved inside.

The Muskegon County Sheriff's Department, however, said two jewelers said the initials just stood for "heavy gold electroplated."

Officers said the second body was believed about 5-foot-2, age 19 or 20, with blonde hair. An 18-inch-long velvet-like ribbon was found nearby.

Area police checked missing person and runaway reports but turned up nothing by Thursday afternoon. Muskegon police said they were able to clear 19 of their 54 active cases on missing persons or runaways after the checks Wednesday and Thursday.

Most officers declined to speculate whether there was any connection between this case and the deaths of the two Chicago women.

The victims in the Galesburg case were identified as Linda Clark and Claudia Bidstrup, both age 19. They were found in the back seat of their car, hands bound, and apparently strangled.

A representative of the Kalamazoo County Sheriff's Office was in Muskegon Thursday to investigate the possibility of a connection between the cases and other unsolved slayings of

Drunk Driver Charge Called Damnable Lie

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton says accusations by columnist Jack Anderson that he has a record of drunken driving are a "damnable lie" and probably will hurt him.

Eagleton also said he is "doubly determined" to remain on the Democratic ticket as the vice presidential candidate and called Anderson's charges a "low blow." Eagleton flatly denied a report by Anderson that photostatic records show the Missouri senator was arrested a half-dozen times for drunken or reckless driving.

Anderson made the allegation in a radio broadcast Thursday. The columnist told

The Associated Press that he did not have the records himself but learned about them from a "high Missouri official." A check by The AP turned up some past speeding citations in Eagleton's name, but no trace of any arrest for drunken or reckless driving. Eagleton angrily told a news conference Thursday in Honolulu that he had never been arrested for drunken or reckless driving, and that Anderson's report appeared to him to be a politically motivated attempt to drive him off the Democratic ticket.

In an interview while flying here from Hawaii, Eagleton underscored his newly strengthened resolve to stay on as running mate of Sen. George McGovern.

"I want to pursue this vice presidency with the greatest degree of determination that I possibly can," Eagleton said.

Some newspapers and Democratic politicians have said Eagleton should step aside because of his admission Tuesday that he had voluntarily undergone psychiatric treatment and shock therapy for "nervous exhaustion and fatigue" and that he hadn't told McGovern about this until after the Democratic National Convention.

In an interview, Eagleton called Anderson's charge a "low blow." He said he thought it would hurt him because denials and refutations don't always catch up with accusations even when the charges are false.

He said he thought the worst part of the Anderson story would be its possible effect on his relations with his wife and children and on his reputation as a man.

"In the end, that's the only thing you leave to your children — your name," Eagleton said. Eagleton, asked to rate odds on whether he would stay on the ticket, said, "I think my chances are excellent."

Growers Must Fix Up Camp

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich. (AP) — Circuit Judge Charles Brown has given 72-year-old cherry grower, Oliver Tomkins, and his wife, Bess, one week to correct violations of state health codes in their migrant labor housing or go to jail.

Brown found the couple guilty for allowing migrant workers to live in a barn for two years without obtaining a mandatory migrant camp permit.

ALLEN J. ELLENDER

Allen Ellender, Dean Of Senate, Is Dead At 81

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allen J. Ellender, the country lawyer who graduated from Huey Long's storied brand of Louisiana politics to become dean of the U.S. Senate, is dead at 81.

A heart attack felled the Senate president pro tempore at Bethesda Naval Hospital at 7:20 p.m. Thursday after he had interrupted his home-state campaign for a seventh term to be present for a Senate vote on an agriculture appropriations bill.

Sen. James O. Eastland, conservative Mississippi Democrat, was elected president pro tempore of the Senate today succeeding Sen. Ellender.

As federal flags dipped to half-staff, praise rose quickly for the man whose stamp long marked the Senate Agriculture Committee and more recently the pivotal Appropriations Committee as its chairman.

He was "a splendid American" who left "a deep imprint on the legislative history of this century," said President Nixon. "I often had the benefit of his counsel, and I valued the opportunity to talk with him before my recent visit to the Soviet Union about his own travels in that country," Nixon said.

To Vice President Spiro T. Agnew, Ellender was "one of the most respected and distinguished members of the United States Senate, a man who combined dignity and simplicity. He was revered on both sides of the aisle."

Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield called a caucus today for Democrats to select a president pro tempore to succeed the man he called "a unique senator. He was a workhorse." James O. Eastland of Mississippi is next in line in length of service for that job while John L. McClellan of Arkansas is in line for the chairmanship of Appropriations.

His entry in the Senate was marked by support of Franklin D. Roosevelt's New Deal against the conservatives of that day, but he himself came to be marked a fiscal and social conservative whose opposition to civil-rights measures was sharp and constant. He left a large imprint on farm legislation and was the author of the original School Lunch Act.

There was no immediate word on funeral arrangements for the senator, who is survived by a son, Dr. Allen J. Ellender Jr., and seven grandchildren.

The death threw Louisiana Democrats into an election limbo. Secretary of State Wade O. Martin Jr. speculated that Democratic nominations might have to be reopened but said a firm decision would have to wait until later today.

Ellender had faced the toughest challenge of his 34-year Senate career in the party primary battle with 39-year-old former state Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, an upstate lawyer who suspended his campaign at news of Ellender's death.

St. Joseph Commission Should Take Longer Look

Former St. Joseph Mayor Tom Sparks doesn't think the St. Joseph city commission should approve a zoning change so that South Havenite Ben Teitel can double the size of his big apartment complex on St. Joseph's Lakeshore drive.

Sparks is right. In his petition drive to force a referendum on the issue, he should get the support of St. Joseph residents who look deeply at what makes their city a good place to live, and what will keep it that way. Better yet, the city commission should reverse itself and rescind the action it took to start the zoning change on its way.

According to city hall, Ben Teitel already has 138 units in the three buildings of Lakecrest Apartments, 3001 Lakeshore drive. He has an option to buy four lots immediately north, all zoned light industrial, and wants to build 116 more apartments on the four lots.

Teitel's existing apartments are tidy one-and-two bedroom units, modestly priced, well maintained—and all rented. He's sure he can rent 116 more. He should be able to.

St. Joseph is among the prettiest, most pleasant residential communities in the Midwest—perhaps the nation. What better testimony to this fact than Teitel's eagerness to invest millions in residential real estate in St. Joseph?

But his project in quest of a profit detracts from what is perhaps the key attraction that brought him to St. Joseph in the first place. That attraction is low population density.

The character of St. Joseph results from a fortunate mix of solid industrial tax base with a relatively small population, 11,046 residents in 3.7 square miles at last census, housed principally in single-family dwellings. The mix produces open spaces, peace and quiet, a minimum demand on municipal services, and a high per capita tax base to defray the cost of services.

The property on which Teitel wants to build more apartments, thereby increasing St. Joseph's population density, is now zoned light industrial. A small plant would boost the city and school district tax base but not the population.

The immediate neighborhood, incidentally, already has several attractive light industrial plants—namely Heath, Leco and the Colonial Heights commercial area—that are neatly landscaped on spacious grounds and constitute both "green belt" and financial assets to the city.

St. Joseph residents, whom the city commission is elected to serve, are not petitioning city hall to expand the Teitel apartments. The only push comes from Mr. Teitel to make a personal profit.

If the commission feels new apartments are needed to accommodate city business and industry, there is a far better place to locate rental units. Large residential sections, adjacent to or near the central business district, are old and deteriorating. They'll become problem areas if the aging homes are allowed to stand much longer, worse yet if a tendency continues to permit conversion of the old houses to multiple-dwelling units, as well as makeshift offices and stores.

Far-sighted interest in the future of St. Joseph would prompt the city commission to announce its intention to clear the decrepit, crowded areas near downtown. Intelligent building codes and strict enforcement would encourage the development of spacious sites that would be quickly filled with commercial buildings. There would be plenty of room for enough modern apartment units to replace the dwellings lost to land clearance.

It matters little that St. Joseph commissioners saw a rather well constructed and very well maintained set of buildings when they toured Mr. Teitel's apartments.

"I know Mr. Teitel is a good landlord," former Mayor Sparks told the commission, "but what happens if in five years Mr. Teitel sells out to a syndicate? What kind of an operation would we have then?"

Some small apartments downtown make sense for older couples whose children are grown, and for younger couples just getting started. But apartments all over town will inevitably change the character of St. Joseph.

The city commission can find horrible examples of excessive population density from Chicago's "Great South Side" to the "concrete jungles" of once beautiful Miami Beach and Fort Lauderdale.

Speculators have so ruined the natural beauty of many Florida cities, incidentally, that the state legislature is considering strict limits on population density. But that's locking the barn door after the horse is stolen. The St. Joseph city commission should rein in before it's too late.

Shedding The Feathers In Industry

Thirty five years ago the automotive industry introduced a new power plant to the railroad industry.

The diesel-electric locomotive took to the rails capable of delivering greater tractive power at a lower operating cost than the Iron Horse.

Though the new unit obsoleted the firemen, the Railroad Brotherhoods insisted he ride in the cab at full pay. They justified this featherbedding on safety grounds. The engineer must suffer a heart attack and if the lone operator of the locomotive was out of action, passengers and freight would be in peril.

This and other featherbedded jobs in railroading have been the subject of endless legislative entanglements, judicial maneuverings and labor-management wrangling as the industry has sought to cut costs so as to remain competitive with other transportation systems.

This week the Brotherhoods and the industry finally agreed to cancel the fireman on freight trains through attribution. When he dies, quits or retires, the job leaves with him.

He stays with passenger trains, but this is a Pyrrhic victory considering the condition of that travel method.

The construction industry which is equally afflicted by featherbedding is showing scattered evidence relaxing its onerous work rules, mainly because nonunion contractors who predominate in the housing field are moving into commercial and industrial projects.

Recently the New Jersey carpenters, bricklayers, masons and laborers agreed to a "full and exclusive" managerial authority clause and eliminated a variety of frivolous work rules.

Across the Hudson river their New York City brothers have been on strike for three weeks in resistance to contractor demands for the New Jersey standards.

Though the Gotham walkout holds back an upgrading in labor-management relations, national leaders in the construction trade unions lately have been speaking in terms of greater productivity.

The steel industry, sorely beset by foreign imports, has been in joint committee session for several months on the productivity issue. While tangible results are not visible at this time, the labor-management discussions on the subject create a new and hopeful sign.

The unnecessary job is an emotional issue, as all pocketbook arguments always are, but it can not get away from the fact that if the employer can't make it in the marketplace, the necessary job flies out the window with the featherbedded one.

It is encouraging that labor is beginning to acknowledge this truth.

Only about three percent of the more than 44 million tons of salt produced in the United States each year fills shakers. Other uses include tanning leather, making glass, soap, and chemicals, and melting snow and ice on sidewalks and highways.

This was hailed as a significant step toward "saving Grand Mere" but Gallaway said the ultimate goal is to save the entire area of lakes, bogs, dunes and forest often labeled as an ecological treasure house.

PARKS SHOULD BE DEVELOPED NOW

Editor,

I feel I must respond to Mr. Randy Payke's letter in the July 25 edition, in which he speaks of the "Parks to the People" plan.

The sad truth he mentions in his letter, concerning non-residents cluttering up our State parks, are the very reasons for the Berrien County Parks for the Public plan. The money Berrien County residents would pay (average $3 per year per family) will purchase precious park land for Berrien County residents. In ten years no resident will be farther than seven miles away from a Berrien County. Many will be for County residents only, the rest will be free to residents, with a charge for non-residents. The first three years the entire amount collected will be used to acquire land, then gradually some of it will be used to develop and operate the parks.

At this time there is only one county park, tiny Rocky Gap. This is hardly enough for our large and thriving area. We need our own system so we won't be dependent on overcrowded, under-staffed State parks, but we'll have to pay for it.

FACTS TO McCLARAN'S POLITICAL CHOICES

Editor,

Does any citizen of Berrien County have a right to have their picture and political recommendations published in the newspaper, or is this for just a chosen few, such as ex-Benton Harbor Police Chief, McClarlan? Perhaps this was a paid political publication on behalf of Jewell.

It appears to me that maybe these men are basically alike in their political views and also in their theory of law enforcement. Both the City of Benton Harbor, and the County of Berrien, have very high crime rate records. If you take a moment to look at the City of Benton Harbor, under McClarlan's law enforcement supervision, 40 per cent of the retail businesses in the City have moved their stores out of the City limits. Could this be because of break-ins, thefts, vandalism, etc., and no police protection therefrom? Perhaps a change in the Sheriff's Department, as well as the change which has taken place in the position of Chief of Police for Benton Harbor, may cause a drastic drop in the rate of crime in this area.

In McClarlan's letter to this newspaper, is he implying that Jewell's primary in the August 8th, primary, namely, Joe Heward, is not a person of "personal honesty and integrity which is vital to law enforcement?" Has he ever served with this man so that he could honestly make such an implication? Joe Heward must have many of these qualifications or he wouldn't have served this county as undersheriff for eight years and as a detective for 11 years.

To further comment on this letter, does McClarlan also imply that Judge Paul Pollard, an incumbent seeking reelection as District Judge, and Attorney Edward Yampolsky are not, "men of fairness, compassion and honesty?"

Interpreted this letter not as a recommendation for Jewell, Cook and Black, but rather as an attack against the opponent's of these men, namely, Joe Heward, Paul Pollard and Edward Yampolsky.

How McGovern Got Larry Back

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Even as the quite accurate and damaging news of his willowy dealings with Lawrence F. O'Brien was getting into print, Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern was moving to correct the situation — and his image.

In Miami Beach the day after the Democratic convention ended, the senator had gone all-out to urge O'Brien to stay on as party national chairman, had persuaded him, and then allowed his staff to veto the arrangement. He looked bad, and knew it.

Then on Sunday in Washington, McGovern started looking again for O'Brien. He found him packing up at the National Committee offices. He asked if he might come to the ex-chairman's apartment that evening, and O'Brien agreed.

McGovern showed up there at 10:30 p.m., accompanied only by Secret Service agents. Mrs. O'Brien met him at the door. The two men talked for two hours, just as they had in Florida.

Only this time it was different. McGovern said over and over that he had made a serious mistake in letting O'Brien get away, and particularly in permitting his staff to veto his own decision.

What impressed O'Brien most was McGovern's evident capacity for quick, almost brutal re-evaluation. Not only was he candidly self-critical, but he laid it on his own staff hard for not seeing the folly of interposing a veto on his decision.

Hearing that, O'Brien found it wholly believable when the senator that night offered him the job of "national campaign chairman," a post independent of the National Committee, with the double function of prime personal political consultant and chief liaison man with key (and presently disaffected) parts of the Democratic establishment.

No decision was reached in O'Brien's Sheraton Park apartment. But in the next 48 hours McGovern kept the heat on. An O'Brien aide estimates that the senator called his boss between 15 and 20 times in that period — from Washington and later from South Dakota. The question was always substantially the same:

"Larry, have you made up your mind yet?"

Finally, Larry did. He came aboard formally four days after McGovern first moved to correct his errors. And it is being suggested by some sources that he kept this phase of his O'Brien negotiations so secret that some of the senator's top staff men got their first word of the new agreement when it was announced publicly.

The whole episode, stretching over at least six days, is a fascinating chapter in presidential politics.

There cannot be many cases in which a presidential nominee has eaten crow in such huge gulps as McGovern downed in this instance. This is not an age when many people can bring themselves to confess error. He did, mentioning "convention fatigue" but not really forgiving himself.

Marionne Means

Independence Of Veeps Slipping

WASHINGTON — Democratic Vice Presidential nominee Thomas Eagleton declared firmly after his selection that he would never indulge in the sort of stomach-punching for which Vice President Spiro Agnew has become famous.

Two weeks later, however, he got the message from his leader, Presidential nominee George McGovern, that bopping away against his counterpart was to be his major campaign assignment.

So much for the independence of Vice Presidents, and would-be Vice Presidents.

Handing the Vice President all the mean work to do, in the name of arousing the partisans, is a tradition that has helped to demean the second highest office the citizens can bestow. In theory, it is supposed to free the Presidential nominee to speak only noble and gentle thoughts, but who would be so glib as to believe the Vice Presidential puppet does not also speak for his leader?

The time is approaching when something must be done to restore dignity and honor and usefulness to the role of the man who is one heartbeat away from the Presidency. One way to begin might be to improve the process of his selection, which was the most disturbing and unsavory part of the recent Democratic National Convention.

In many ways it was a model convention, more representative and open than any that preceded it. And yet Eagleton was selected in a back room by a handful of pals almost solely on the basis of criteria of his religion, his region, and his ties to labor.

The delegates did not like it, either. Despite their disciplined devotion to McGovern, hordes of his own loyalists decided to desert him. With the exception of 1956, when Adlai Stevenson threw the convention open, the Vice Presidential choice of the new nominee had always been ratified easily by no less than 80 per cent of the delegates.

This time, however, only 59 per cent voted for Eagleton. The others voted for candidates nominated by various causes, or men like Sen. Mike Gravel and ex-Gov. Endicott Peabody, who ran independently because they thought the convention ought to have a choice.

When Gravel, whose qualifications for the job are as flimsy as Eagleton's, violated custom to speak on his own behalf, the convention roared its approval — not of his candidacy per se but of the fact he wanted to carry his fight to them personally.

Elderly, Sick
Lawton Woman's Problem Solved

BY ROGER WELSHANS

An elderly woman too infirm to properly care for her 50 dogs, and ordered to remove them from her property near Lawton, loaded the dogs into a stationwagon and took them to her abandoned house on Whitney street in Benton township.

After being placed in the house, the dogs began fighting among themselves and creating a lot of noise. At least one dog was killed and partially eaten by others before the Berrien County Sheriff's K9 division, could come and remove the dogs from the house.

Mrs. Hilda Goldstein, Route 1, Lawton, said later she was ordered to have her 50 Cocker Spaniel-Pekinese dogs off her property by 10 a.m. yesterday by the Van Buren county dog warden. The dogs had been interbreeding and multiplying rapidly over the last four years and Mrs. Goldstein said she has become too sick to care for them properly. She lives alone.

She also had been trying to take care of dogs others didn't want or had abandoned.

"I love dogs," she said. "I wouldn't mean to any one of them for anything in the world."

Because she had to move her dogs from the Lawton property, she enlisted the help of George Rhoades, Decatur, to help move the dogs with his station wagon to an empty and condemned house she owns at 1477 Whitney street, Benton township. They took two dogs to the human society and "left some money for their care" about 11 a.m. yesterday.

While she was gone, two of the dogs fought. One was killed. The other dogs in the small, cramped room then turned on the dead dog and began to eat it.

At the same time, the dogs began barking loudly, attracting a group of neighbors to see what was causing the disturbance.

Paul Holly, 1658 King avenue, Benton township, called the township police with a complaint about the dogs. Benton township police in turn notified the K9 division.

The dog wardens arrived at the house shortly after noon. They took the dogs to the dog pound to be cleaned and fed. Mrs. Goldstein said she had been feeding the dogs twice a day with dog food and liver. She has spinal arthritis and admitted she hasn't been able to care for the dogs as she would have liked to. When she was ordered to remove the dogs from her property, she said she didn't know where else to take them except to her vacant house here.

SJ Factory Addition Put At $201,000

Shepherd Casters Inc. is adding 36,000 square feet to its Kerth avenue plant to make production room for old and new products.

Peter Bentley, vice chairman of the Shepherd Casters board, said today production of the new barbecue and some metal stamping operations will be moved into the 150 by 240 by 22 feet addition.

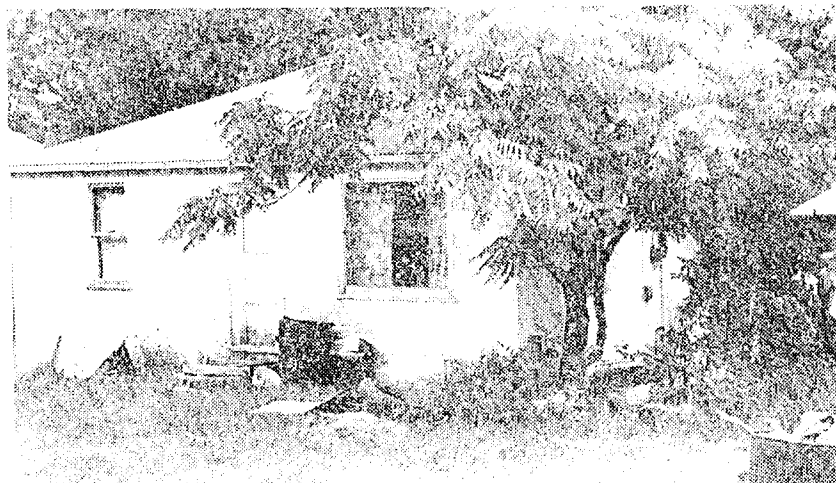

The new structure will be located on the north side of the plant located in the St. Joseph Industrial park.

Occupation will be around Nov. 1, Bentley said. The style of the new building will conform to the original plant.

The building permit issued to Pearson Construction Co., Benton Harbor calls for construction costs of $201,200.

In a 1972 business forecast Bentley revealed Shepherd Casters' plans to bring out new products including the barbecue, a conventional line of casters and expand the firm's production of its unique roller type of furniture caster. Shepherd Casters, which started operations in Benton Harbor in 1957, now employs approximately 140 in the plant in St. Joseph built in 1968.

Benton Planners Give Approval To 30-Bed Convalescent Home

Benton township planners last night approved a request by two Fairplain psychiatrists to construct a 30-bed convalescent home, and heard a request by a Standard Oil Co. representative regarding construction of a service station.

Approval of the convalescent home came after a public hearing on the request by Drs. Nicholas and Halina Minkevich. Plans call for the home to be constructed on a site bordered by Lynch avenue on the south with Pearl and Superior streets and Columbus avenue running into it on the north.

The request was for a special use permit to construct and operate the home.

Robert Mattner, chairman of the committee that investigated the request, said the land where the home will be constructed has been idle for a number of years, and noted, "A project of this sort could be an asset to the area and the community."

Mattner noted that a similar home is already operating in the South Haven area, and said it is successful. Planners had praise for the work being done by the doctors, who concentrate on the field of psychiatry.

The request now goes before the next meeting of the Benton township board of trustees.

Planners also received a request by G.A. Streelman, a representative of the American Oil Co., for construction of a one stall gas station.

Streelman said the station would be located on land the company owns at Red Arrow highway and I-196. He noted the firm has owned the land, about 840 by 1,300 feet, for about 10 years.

Streelman said only the front corner of the property would be developed, and stressed that the prime function of the facility would be to pump gas.

He said the station would be designed with only one service stall, "for emergency work." He also said plans call for large rest room facilities.

Planners referred the request to a study committee. In other business, planners:

—Referred to committee a request by Charles Waldrop to operate a used trailer sales at 2046 South M-139. Waldrop said his firm, Eastend Campers Inc., sells campers, travel trailers, and motor homes.

Made no decision on a request by the Lifegate Free Will Baptist church to construct a church on Zoschke road near the Hagar township line. Planners declined to take action until a public hearing on the request is held.

Recommended approval to township trustees a request by Jerry and Ray Nail for a special use permit to operate a second hand store at 1625 Territorial road.

SJ Board Will Meet After Vote

St. Joseph board of education has scheduled a special meeting for 9 p.m. Monday but what action the members will take will depend on the outcome of Monday's special operating millage election.

Previously the board has established Sept. 5 as the date for a third millage election if the issue does not pass Monday. The meeting Monday will be held in room 250 of St. Joseph High school.

NEW SALES MARK

DEARBORN, Mich. (AP) — Sales of Lincoln-Mercury models have topped 500,000 for the first time in division history, Ford Vice President Bennett E. Bidwell announced Thursday.

Annual Kiwanis Park Playground Tournaments Start Next Monday

The annual playground tournaments will be held in Kiwanis park in St. Joseph July 31 through Aug. 3, Gerald Stemm, director, has announced.

Competition is scheduled between 9:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Children will be divided into classes according to age and sex.

There will be competition in chess, Chinese checkers, tether ball, loop tennis, checkers, ping pong, croquet and archery.

Children entering the tournaments should check the park bulletin board for specific dates.

All tournaments are under the supervision of Jill Konrath, David Koch and Stenun. The City of St. Joseph sponsors the program.

BUSY FAIRGROUNDS: Shown are some of the people attending Van Buren county youth fair at fairgrounds on Red Arrow highway between Hartford and Lawrence. Fair is to continue through Saturday night with attendance expected to set a new record. Live stock auction and Dan Fleenor's Hell Drivers were

Buyers Set Records At Youth Fair

HARTFORD — Buyers at the Van Buren youth fair livestock auction set four new records here in bidding on beef, swine and sheep owned by 4-H exhibitors.

Total sales for the auction were $40,700, up more than $7,000 from the $33,151 bid on animals during the 1971 youth fair auction.

In addition, according to M. J. Conklin, youth fair co-manager, individual records were set on prices paid for champion beef, swine and sheep animals.

The grand champion steer, a 1,190-pound Charolais owned by George Fritz, of Bloomingdale, brought $1.68 per pound, for a total of $1,998. It was purchased by Stoney's Ford Sales, of Gobles, which also purchased the champion swine.

Last year's champion steer brought $1 per pound.

The 205-pound champion swine, owned by Sharon Mead, of Decatur, brought $3.40 per pound, a new record, for a total of $697.

Bidding on the champion sheep, a 130-pound animal owned by Bill Rhodes, of rural Paw Paw, also set a record. The animal was purchased by Harding's market, of Hartford, for $3.25 per pound, for a total of $422.50.

Last year the champion hog brought $2.50 per pound and the champion lamb $3 per pound.

Attendance at the fair Thursday also brought smiles to the faces of fair officials after a rainy day Wednesday.

Thursday's fair attendance was 5,550, plus another 1,000 admitted on passes. The rain-reduced attendance Wednesday was 1,500 persons.

Attendance for the fair through Thursday is put between 16,000 and 20,000, fair officials estimate.

The fair continues through Saturday and with the improvement in the weather, fair officials are hoping for a huge turnout for two performances tonight of the Del Reeves country and western show at 7 p.m. and again at 9 p.m.

Entrance to the grandstand is free.

Saturday marks the final day of the 1972 youth fair with the midway opening at 1 p.m.

The youth exhibitors' fun horse show begins at 9:30 a.m., the pony sulky races at 1 p.m. and the International Demolition Derby at 8 p.m.

The Berrien county parks and recreation commission (PRC) last night said it has what's "tantamount to an option" on 400 acres of potential parkland in Berrien county.

In addition, a volunteer group working with the PRC last night accepted $100 and an endorsement from a prominent conservation organization toward the committee's goal of winning approval Aug. 8 for 4 mills for a county parks program.

Emil Tosi, Stevensville restaurateur and chairman of the volunteer "Parks for the Public" committee, reported PRC Chairman Bun Baldwin has obtained an agreement "tantamount to an option" on 400 acres with private lake.

"This is an initial step toward showing we mean business," Tosi said. "Mr. Baldwin says there are more options we're sure to get."

Baldwin confirmed the 400-acre agreement but declined further comment until the option is signed.

The PRC last month allocated $5,000 as option money for parksites in six general areas of the county, with options to be announced before the referendum Aug. 8 as what Baldwin called proof to voters of PRC intent.

The 4 mills would produce more than $300,000 a year for 10 years. The PRC by consensus has okayed a schedule of spending providing 72 per cent of millage for parkland acquisition, 20 per cent for development and 8 per cent for operations.

During the PRC monthly meeting last night in the courthouse, St. Joseph, the president of the Grand Mere Association presented Tosi's committee with $100 and an endorsement of its millage drive.

"Being basically a conservation group, we agreed with and support your program to provide unique areas for generations yet to come," said John Florian.

Walter Laetz, committee finance chief, reported more than $2,000 in $25 to $500 donations on hand in the committee's goal of $10,000 for a radio-newspaper-direct mail advertising campaign promoting a "yes" vote Aug. 8.

Henry Fenderbosch, promotion chairman, and William Gebhard, county parks coordinator, discussed radio and newspaper advertising costs with PRC members and committeemen and told them 65,000 brochures explaining the parks program and millage should be in Berrien county homes by late next week.

Ownership Of Guns Not The Problem, Speaker Says

BY ROGER WELSHANS
Staff Writer

"Criminals won't voluntarily turn in their firearms, yet we are being asked to turn in ours," said William Henry, assistant director of the National Association to Keep and Bear Arms.

Henry spoke to a crowd of about 75 last night in the St. Joseph high school auditorium on the necessity for citizens to retain the right to privately own handguns.

The National Association to Keep and Bear Arms, formed in 1966 in Medford, Ore., is currently circulating pressure petitions throughout the state trying to repeal the Gun Control Act of 1968. The association is a non-profit organization funded through $6 per year memberships and donations.

Henry also spoke on behalf of an ad hoc committee of the NAKBA in Michigan that is circulating petitions trying to get a recall vote of Sen. Philip Hart because of his strong stand for gun control. "Sen. Hart has proposed a bill to Congress that would allow the government to confiscate guns," Henry said. Under this bill, there would be a grace period of 180 days in which to turn in your guns. After the grace period, owning a gun would be a federal felony, punishable by five years in prison or a $5,000 fine," Henry said.

He noted the ad hoc committee must procure 654,000 signatures in 90 days from its starting date of July 12.

Henry said private ownership of firearms is not the cause of the rising murder rate in the U.S.

"It is criminal intent, not ownership, that is causing trouble with firearms," Henry said.

"We are being asked to turn in our guns because a very small percentage of gun owners abuse them," Henry added.

Members of the audience seemed to wholeheartedly agree with Henry's ideas on gun control. They volunteered to distribute petitions in the area asking for the repeal of gun control.

One member of the audience firmly agreed with Henry's philosophy on less gun control when he was overheard whispering to a companion sitting next to him, "If you want to enslave a nation, find out where all its guns are and take them."

Wallace Won't Attend Trial

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)—An aide says that Gov. George C. Wallace has no plans to appear at the Maryland trial of the man accused of wounding him, Arthur H. Bremer.

Wallace's news secretary, Billy Joe Camp, said Thursday that the governor has received a subpoena that gives him the option of attending the trial but does not require it.

AEC Investigating Fuel Rods In Nuclear Plants

The Atomic Energy Commission reports it is "looking at" the Palisades nuclear power plant in Covert township as part of an investigation into a mysterious kind of damage involving a type of fuel rod used there.

The AEC said Thursday it has been quietly investigating the matter for the past two months but believes plants using this kind of fuel can continue to operate safely pending completion of the study.

The commission reported that it has already ordered one power plant to operate at 83 per cent of full power, pending outcome of the investigation. It is the R.E. Ginna plant near Ontario, N.Y., owned by the Rochester Gas and Electric Company.

The AEC also said that monitoring systems are in use to detect any fuel changes at two other plants that use the particular fuel type. These are the Point Beach plant at Manitowish, Wis., and unit 2 of the H. B. Robinson plant near Hartsville, S.C.

The reactors of all three plants were designed and fueled by the Westinghouse

Corp. A commission spokesman added that "we're looking at" the Palisades Nuclear Power Plant operated by Consumers Power Co. of Michigan, near South Haven. It also uses the fuel.

The reactor for the latter plant was designed and fueled by Combustion Engineering, Inc.

The spokesman said the four plants listed constitute the only ones employing this particular type of fuel out of 28 nuclear power plants now in operation.

Court Overturns Man's Conviction In Van Buren

PAW PAW — The conviction of an Indiana man on a charge of auto theft has been overturned by the state court of appeals and remanded back to Van Buren circuit court for disposition.

Van Buren Prosecutor William Buhl said Thursday that the appeals court reversed the case of Robert Kirby, 24, of Gary, Ind.

Kirby pleaded guilty to the charge on March 15, 1971, and was sentenced on April 5, 1971, to a term of from four to five years in prison.

In his appeal, Kirby claimed Circuit Court Judge David Anderson Jr. failed to advise him of his right to confront his accusers and of the privilege against self-incrimination.

The reversal of the Kirby case on what the county prosecutor has described as a "technicality" is the eleventh such case to be remanded back to the circuit court.

CAMPAIGNING: Mrs. Barbara Eagleton, wife of Sen. Thomas F. Eagleton, stress a point during an interview in her hotel suite late Thursday afternoon in San Francisco. Mrs. Eagleton, while on a visit to the Bay Area, refuted a columnist's report that her husband had a history of drunk driving by calling it "preposterous" and "absolutely not true." (AP Wirephoto)

Youths Snatch Woman's Purse, Shopping Bag

Benton Harbor police reported a purse and shopping bag were stolen from a woman last night while she was waiting for a taxi.

Emily Nowlin, of 587 Plummer court, Benton Harbor, told police she was waiting for a cab in the 400 block of Pipestone street at 9 p.m. She said she set her purse, containing $9, and a bag con-

NEWSPAPER BAN
ON POETRY QUESTIONED

Editor,
Just a few words please about some journalistic policies currently under discussion. The principle of freedom of press is not being attacked. Who would want the newspapers unlawfully censored? Newspapers are free to publish anything just so long as it isn't libelous, is free of malicious falsehood and conforms to our rather liberal standards of moral decency. Freedom of expression obviously applies to everybody
